

LINUS IDAHOSA

Linus Idahosa is an international media consultant with global repute, a CNN accredited agent in Nigeria. He has offered consultancy services to some of Nigeria's biggest blue chip companies, helping to raise their visibility on various international platforms. He is the CEO and the brain behind a revolutionary company that seeks to reposition Nigeria's film industry; Del-York International is a full service media consultancy and sole representative of the most prestigious film making academy in the world; The New York Film Academy in Nigeria. The academy has just made its first entry to Africa via Del-York; training over 400 aspiring and professional film makers. Del-York has also just begun a campaign geared towards the restive youths of the troubled Niger Delta region, a rare campaign that seeks to exchange the shooting skills of militants for shooting with cameras. Encouraging them to tell their stories with cameras not guns.

Linus Idahosa is now poised to create films that hold fast to an ideological principle that at its core inspires people to think outside the box as well as challenge conventional thinking.